COMMENTS:

I strongly object to this application. It poses a significant risk to local wildlife and habitats. Charvil lakes is home to otters, bats and amphibians. A fuel spillage could be devastating to this beautiful country park. The area often floods and any fuel spills during a flood would be impossible to contain.

There is a huge fire risk due to storing fuels in a residential area. There is also a serious risk to local residents when crossing the road and this is on a school route for several schools.

Charvil already has the A4 running through it with heavy weight of traffic, adding large numbers of articulated fuel tankers down winding 40mph is a serious risk to pedestrians.
