Viewpoint 7 The Straight Mile

Existing View
This viewpoint is located on a busy local road north of the M4. It is from a location where the roadside hedgerow is maintained at a low height and does not contain any hedgerow trees, and where intervening vegetation is slightly thinner in appearance than some locations to the north and south. It looks across an arable field, with a gappy hedgerow with occasional trees located on the opposite side of the field. Further layers of vegetation can be seen beyond this first field. A row of pylons and overhead lines crosses the view. Further north and south along the road it runs between areas of woodland that further restrict views towards the Site.

Predicted Changes to Views
The tops of the proposed masts would be visible above the treed skyline, with the majority of the masts screened by the intervening vegetation. The closest of the existing pylons would remain the prominent manmade vertical element in the view.
