COMMENTS:

I object to the removal of these trees on the following grounds:
These trees provide valuable food, shelter and breeding sites for many species of insects, fungi, birds and bats. They are not diseased and do not constitute a danger to life or property. Dead or decaying wood plays a crucial role in nature and biodiversity and who-ever examined these trees should know that. Removing these mature trees will destroy more of the dwindling biodiversity on this site. Dead trees are known as snags and are critical for wildlife. The trees should remain protected by TPO's and should not be cut down.
All six of these houses were built in breach of planning conditions and remain in breach of planning conditions. No alterations or further destruction of remaining woodland should be allowed until the breaches in planning conditions have been addressed. Planning application 250301 which aims unsuccessfully to address some of these planning breaches has been outstanding since February 2025. This planing application needs to be resolved properly in order to correct the planning breaches. Only then should the residents of these houses be allowed to submit further planning applications.
