COMMENTS:

I'm writing again to object to the revised plans for the proposed development at the rear of 240 Nine Mile Ride.

While some minor changes have been made, they don't go far enough - most of the key issues raised in the previous appeal remain unresolved.

The character of the area would be changed significantly. The scale and density of what's being proposed are still completely out of keeping with the rest of Finchampstead. This area is valued for its semi-rural feel, and this development doesn't respect that. Traffic, over congestion and safety issues still exist.

A number of the original concerns - including overdevelopment, lack of privacy for neighbouring properties, and poor boundary treatment - still haven't been dealt with properly. These were raised before and haven't been meaningfully improved.

For these reasons, I continue to object and ask that this application is refused again.
