COMMENTS:

Yet again the plans for the existing / current parking situation are entirely inaccurate.

Before making such plans, the people making them should really visit the site and count the marked spaces rather than I presume looking at some older plans first.

How can we trust plans for dealing with extra capacity if the base for them is already wrong?

Car park is not only not big enough to meet the demand of more cars, but adding more in such limited space will make parking and leaving more difficult.

Please visit the site and see for yourself and make a more accurate plan of the current parking situation.
