

Hi

Top one is the original plan – With a shed on the right hand side.

One below is the SAME plan just the doors have moved to the other side to create privacy for everyone. The windows are in the same place. The shed is in the same place. I have extended the shed or might put a separate shed (but that does not need planning permission) The new shed is to create privacy for no. 15 so no one is looking into their garden.

- The size is the same
- The windows are the same
- The shed is the same side.
- Only the doors have moved to the back and it has moved slightly away from the fence to create a space to enter the unit.
- The inside left side remains the same. The right side is just swapped around to accommodate the doors.

So the only change is the doors moving and the build moving 2 meters from the back fence. But this way creates privacy for everyone.