1 November 2001

Dear Sir,

WYFOLD GALLERIES LTD, THAMESIDE, HENLEY ON THAMES
Revised application for erection of steel security shutters on shopfront (retrospective) – painted with a trompe l'oeil.

We attach the following planning application documents:

1. Planning application form part I.
2. Planning application form part II.
3. Location Plan with the premises coloured pink.
4. Photographs of shutters.
5. Copy of letter from insurance brokers dated 13th September 2001.

Three copies of the application documents are also enclosed together with ownership Certificate B.

The Scheme

Wyfold Galleries took up a lease of Thames Galleries' former premises, designed and fitted out the shop and modified the facade as permitted development while a planning application by Century Galleries [ref: P00/SO741] was still being processed. Century Galleries' scheme (which included security bollards) had been integrated with W.H. Brakspear & Sons' applications to renovate other parts of the facade [ref: P00/SO828 & P00/SO829] owned by the Henley Brewery including the Little White Hart. The proposed balcony and associated façade improvements for Century Galleries cannot be constructed until pavement widening works are carried out. Those works still await planning permission.

Wyfold Galleries' original scheme (as approved by Century Galleries) incorporated interior grille sliding shutters inside the window frames. While shop fitting work was being carried out, more recent intelligence about local security problems received by Wyfold's insurers caused them to initiate a scheme to install perforated roller shutter security blinds. It was not possible to install the shutters behind the recessed shop windows without making significant structural alterations to the building. Unlike similar blinds tolerated elsewhere in the Conservation Area, the blind box was carefully installed so as not to intrude forwards of the line of the fascia.

The Shutters
The photograph on drawing E1390\B1 shows the existing appearance of the building it its setting with shutters:

- raised revealing the interior window fittings and
- lowered revealing (by photomontage) a painted trompe l'oeil.

After dark, with the lights on the shop interior will continue to be visible through the closed perforated shutters.

Drawing E1390/B2 compares the lowered shutters with and without the trompe l'oeil.

Drawing E1390/B3 shows how the painted shutters will appear from an oblique angle. It must be understood that this image is produced by telephoto and that the lack of alteration due to perspective will not be apparent to the eye in the context of the whole riverscape. Of course, as with any trompe l'oeil, close examination will reveal what it really is.

Conclusion
The Gallery sought retrospective approval for the perforated shutters, but the District Council refused permission. They have tried to negotiate alternative shutters with their insurers without success. The attached insurers' letter shows that the Gallery will probably have to close if insurance cover is withdrawn. It suggests that the consequences may affect other businesses in the Henley area.

It is hoped that the Council will appreciate the very special circumstances of this case and that they can find a way to accommodate quality shops with high value goods within the shopping centre. They need have no fear that a precedent will be created which has not already been created within the Conservation Area.

Yours faithfully,

Simon Eve Associates.

BY FACSIMILE

Dear Sirs

Security Provisions at Wyfold Gallery, Thames Side

As you are aware, inspectors appointed by the underwriters of ACE Art Dealer's Block Policy have inspected the security provisions at the above address and have confirmed that they are adequate for the cover provided.

We understand that South Oxfordshire District Council have refused planning consent specifically for the shutters at the front of the building and have expressed their objection to fitting any type of shutters.

The shutters currently installed and approved by the inspector are considered an essential part of the security of the premises in an area which has been affected in the past by ram-raids. The interior grille shutters which rest on wooden cupboards are in our professional opinion wholly inadequate to deter a ram-raid.

Our research into incidents in Henley has also shown that the Panasonic retail outlet was the subject of a ram-raid on several occasions and as a result fitted steel roller shutters to the front of their building.

We understand that you have explored alternative shutters, although we would stress that these would require the prior approval of the inspector. Lattice-type shutters have one weakness in so far as they are capable of being dragged by means of a rope or steel hawser from their fixings and consequently do not represent a secure means of protection.

Unless the replacement shutters meet or exceed the standards of those currently fitted, it is highly likely that underwriters will want to review the cover they provide and we must put you on notice that they could decide to withdraw cover, thereby preventing you from continuing to trade as a high quality gallery. In time such a review would have implications not only for your business, but also for other businesses in the Henley area.
