COMMENTS:

I have now seen the more detailed parking plans for the building in the design proposal.

This would be unacceptable to me or whoever parks in my current space. The design plan shows the block paving that is currently on the corner of my space (7, though will be 10 according to the new plan) will be removed, although the back paving will remain.

Currently you can just about drive straight out of the spot and make the immediate left to leave the car park but often you will go over the paving to do so. Putting that parking bay up against the wall will make that turn practically impossible and will require making multiple turns / manoeuvres to get out.
