COMMENTS:

The frequency and size of the lorries going to and from Hall Hunter farm is already too much for the roads. The traffic lights at the junction of Heathlands Road with Nine Mile Ride are regularly damaged by the lorries which very often cause traffic to reverse up in order to allow the very large lorries to get around the junction.

The lorries drag their wheels across the road surface in order to get around the corner therefore damaging the road surface. All this is causing significant cost to the Council (tax payers) to make repairs and while the traffic lights are not operational or knocked out of position make the junction dangerous for road traffic and pedestrians. Therefore making the Council susceptible to legal claims.
