

Types of Tree Preservation

- Single - If trees merit protection specified as individual trees
- Group - The group category where the individual category is not used, but the group's overall impact is considered
- Area - The area category where trees are dispersed over an area defined on the Order. It is expedient to protect the area. It will protect only those trees within the area
- Woodland - A Woodland defined area, including saplings i.e. trees less than 10cm in diameter. The woodland category is defined as a whole. So it follows that individual trees within the woodland are protected by the provisions and exemptions which apply to woodlands which grow naturally or
