The image displays two architectural section drawings, Section A-A and Section E-E, of a building. The drawings are oriented with the ground level at the bottom and the second floor at the top. The building has a basement, ground floor, first floor, and second floor. The drawings show the existing structure and proposed modifications, including windows, doors, and structural elements. Key features include:

- Section A-A: Shows a cross-section of the building. The ground floor contains a lobby and stairs. The first floor contains a large open space. The second floor contains a large open space. The basement contains a large open space. The drawings show the existing structure and proposed modifications, including windows, doors, and structural elements.
- Section E-E: Shows a cross-section of the building. The ground floor contains a lobby and stairs. The first floor contains a large open space. The second floor contains a large open space. The basement contains a large open space. The drawings show the existing structure and proposed modifications, including windows, doors, and structural elements.

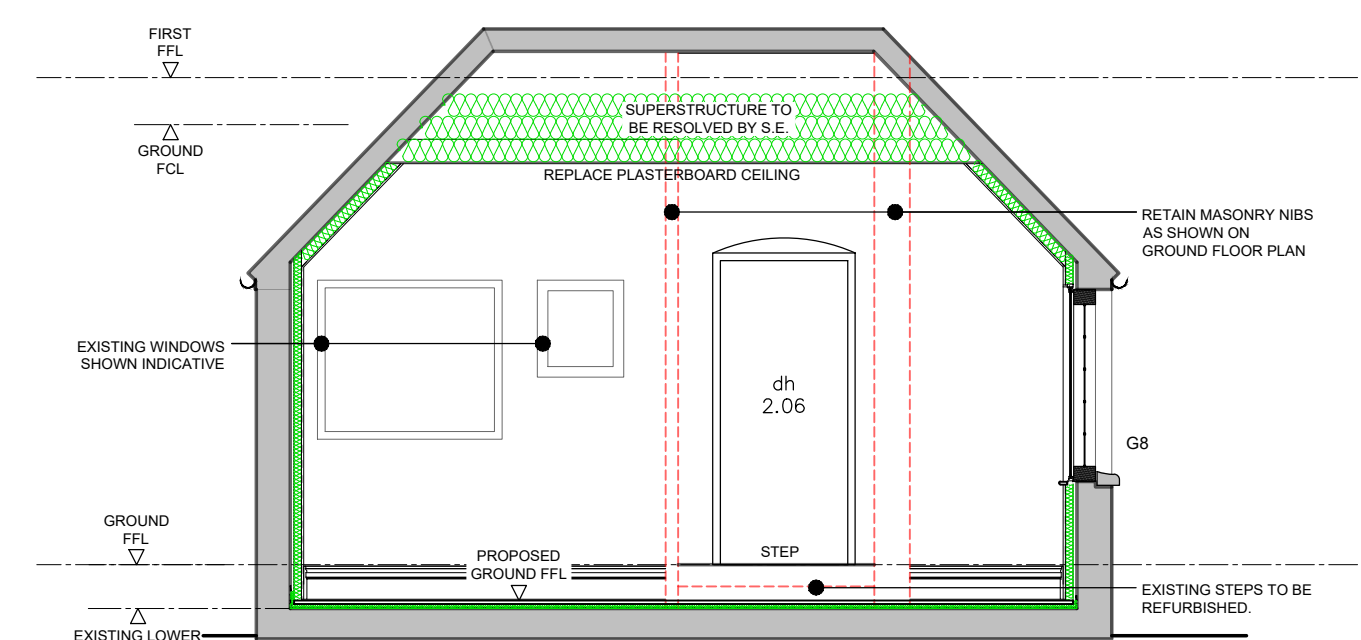

The drawings include detailed annotations for materials, dimensions, and construction details. Key annotations include:
