COMMENTS:

One of the problems that arise with new residence locations is that the new schools built there usually start from the youngest age level and build up year by year to full capacity. Given the anticipated number of residents, there will be children at all stages of their education, who would not be able to gain access to these new schools, and have to be found places at other schools.

From my experience on the Education Appeal Panel, I am aware that virtually all the schools in Wokingham Borough are full, and parents are faced with considerable difficulty in getting their children to a school allocated to them miles away, when they were under the impression that a school would be available to them within walking distance. It needs to be made clear by the sales department of the firm carrying out this construction to prospective buyers that the schools being built in the new area will only be open to children at the Reception and Year 7 stages unless a way can be found to open them fully right from the start.
