COMMENTS:

I object to the application to ammend the terms of the planning permission. Especially condition 1. The temporary planning permission was very clearly only granted on the basis of the exceptional need of the specific family who initially applied for planning permission. On the basis that their exceptional need no longer exists (proven by the fact they no longer intend to live there), the application to vary the conditions should be denied and indeed, the temporary planning permission revoked.

They are also breaking other conditions of the planning permission by carrying out commercial operations from the site. Also not in keeping with the basis of their appeal; which was founded on the 'desperate need for family accomodation with no other alternative locations existing'

I urge decisive action here to stop the blatant abuse of the planning system and the precedent it sets to allow others to do the same.
