

An architectural elevation rendering of a three-story brick building. The building features a central entrance with a small overhang and a gabled roof. The facade is composed of red brick and dark-framed windows. The building is flanked by two gabled sections with dark wood siding. A row of green shrubs runs along the base of the building. The background shows a blue sky with light clouds.

This architectural elevation drawing depicts a symmetrical, three-story building facade. The central portion features a prominent gabled roofline. The ground floor includes a central entrance with a double door and two large, multi-paned windows on either side. The second and third floors are characterized by a series of windows, including double doors and large multi-paned windows, creating a balanced and formal appearance. The drawing is a black and white line art illustration.

