COMMENTS:

Does not Class AA refer to the upward extension of an existing dwelling house, if so, is this application correct, as the structure upon which this extension will be built will not be a dwelling house, but apartments to be converted under Class MA (application 241853)? In addition, if this application is approved and is implemented before any implementation of an approval of the Class MA application, is not the premise of Class AA (application 241853) not fulfilled, as this will be an extension of an office building?
