COMMENTS:

As an addition to my first comment. It's all very well carrying out an Acoustic impact assessment, but how is it valid, when the units were unoccupied at the time of the survey? Its can only ever be q true reflection of the real impact, once a business is operating from there, and the noise is measured, based on their business activity? Furthermore, a noise that is acceptable within normal working hours, certainly wouldn't be acceptable, later in the evening.
