COMMENTS:

The community is already being overwhelmed due to the rapid increase in population, with sewage overflows, overcrowding in schools and excess amounts of traffic for the small roads. Building houses on that area of land proposed will decrease Shinfield's countryside appeal, and will remove the aesthetic nature of the area. Houses are already quite densely packed in the current developments and further construction of dense houses is going to eventually overwhelm services. We only have one local dentist, one local primary school, those who will potentially move into the proposed houses are going to be families with young children, requiring school and health services, thus as you can imagine it will create immense pressure in services, increase pollution and make the current residents unhappy.

Builders are very likely to ignore the pleas of the community but I hope we have communicated the message across to you so you can stand in our place and object to the building
