

This architectural elevation drawing shows a two-story house with a gambrel roof. The front facade features a large central porch with four columns and a pedimented roof. To the left of the porch are two large windows with decorative lintels. To the right is a single window. The second story has a central dormer with two windows, flanked by two smaller dormers, each with a single window. The roof is covered in shingles, and there are two chimneys on the left side. The house is set on a slight incline with a dark ground line at the base.

This architectural elevation drawing shows a house with a complex roofline. The main roof is a gable with a smaller gable nested within it. The front of the house features a smaller gable over a central entrance door and a side porch with a gabled roof. The drawing includes details for siding, windows, and doors.
